

SENATOR SHOWS UP DUPLICITY OF REFINERS' CLAIMS

New Solon From Louisiana In Farewell To House Explains Price Juggling

COMPLIMENT PAID TO GEORGE R. CARTER

Cane Growers' Champion Believes All Producers Will Make United Stand

How the sugar refiners' trust was able to absorb all the profits incident upon a lowering of the tariff, by which the consumer has not been permitted to benefit one penny's worth, was explained by Senator-elect Broussard of Louisiana in his farewell speech to his colleagues of the house.

The senator referred in terms of warm admiration to former Governor George R. Carter of Hawaii.

"I am proud," he said, "to number such a splendid specimen of sturdy American manhood among my personal friends."

As reported in the latest issue of the Congressional Record, the speech follows:

Broussard and Carter

Mr. Broussard. Mr. Speaker, the members of this house on yesterday received a circular letter sent out by the Federal Sugar Refining Company and signed by P. C. Lowry, its sales manager, in which the following appeared:

"For political purposes Congressman Broussard recently stated:

"Refiners told congress, and congress believed the refiners, that if the sugar duties were reduced consumers would receive the advantage of the reduction. On March 1 congress reduced the then-existing duties twenty-five per cent, and not a single moment from that day to this has the consumer paid as little money for his sugar as he did before the reduction."

Curiously enough, next day Governor Carter of Hawaii, Congressman Broussard's ally in the effort to retain the high duties on sugar, more correctly stated the situation as follows:

"In fact, the war in Europe has made the last year the most phenomenal year in the history of sugar growers. In April, 1914, we got the lowest price for sugar in twenty years."

I will not dignify this miserable scribble by directing the attention of the house to him further than to recall that when he began to circulate congress as the mouthpiece of the refiners, some years ago, he posed and signed himself "Bernard," the "committee of wholesalers" to form a syndicate in obtaining cheaper sugar for consumers through reduction of duties on raw and refined sugars."

Deluge of Circulars

It was afterwards compelled to admit, under oath before an investigating committee of this house, that this committee had never held a meeting, even of two members; that not even a penny of dues had ever been paid; that it by the alleged members, that he had elected himself secretary and treasurer; and that his employer (Spreckels) had financed it by contributing approximately $30,000 to circulate the fraudulent and untruthful literature with which he deluged congress and the country.

When they began to poison the public mind a few years ago, they caused millions of circulars to be sent not only to the business men but to the housewives of the country, in which it was stated:

"There is probably no article handled by the wholesale and retail grocers on such a small margin of profit as sugar, so that any reduction in the tariff would immediately result in a corresponding reduction in the price of sugar to the consumer, who would thus receive all the benefit from the reduced rate. No objection can therefore be made against a reduction in the tariff on sugar on the ground that the difference in the tax on sugar would go to the refiners or the dealers handling it."

The public benefits from cheaper sugar would not and with reducing the cost of the sugar to the consumer. Under the present tariff the refiners get a high cost of sugar seriously burdensome to our great fruit raising and preserving industries, and by increasing the cost of these products limits their consumption in this country and practically prohibits exportation on a large scale."

Millions Deceived

They passed their fraudulent statements intended solely to deceive, upon the head of every tariff that left the refinery and inserted in every pound package of sugar a circular saying that if the duty was removed the housewife could secure that same sugar at a saving of two cents a pound.

Millions of people were deceived. A great clamor arose throughout the country for cheaper sugar, and while the work of revising the tariff was in progress these refiners sold their output at a loss in order to further the deception. They knew they could make up their losses later after congress had been trapped.

This is proven by the course of this identical Federal Sugar Refining Company. It lost so much money during its campaign for "cheap sugar" that it was compelled to skip the usual dividend on its common stock, and on January 7, 1914, its president, Charles A. Spreckels, Lowry's employer, issued a statement in which he explained the suspension of the dividend by saying: "Spreckels' Duplicity"

"This is due to the fact that during the past few months the margin between the cost of raw sugar and the

Hawaiian Fights Shark To Death and Saves Girl

Thrilling Story of How Native
Slew 'Man-Eater' Originates On Coast

ACCORDING to a special dispatch to the Washington Post from San Francisco, Miss Katherine Costello of New York had a thrilling experience at Pearl Harbor with a man-eating shark during her recent visit here. While there is no record of any such incident at Pearl Harbor, the story as telegraphed from the coast of the nation may interest and surprise the friends of Miss Costello here. It is as follows:

"When Miss Katherine Costello of New York was flung into the inky-black part of the South Pacific Ocean from a bumpy outrigger, canoe, she started the enigma of life and death in her direction."

"The one was a man-eating shark; the other a native Hawaiian boatman. For three desperate minutes she didn't know which would reach her first. She had been alone in the frail craft, learning to sail it in Pearl Harbor near Honolulu. She clung to the mast, shouting for help. Far out from the breakers a black fin began moving in. And from the other direction a semicircular boatman raced out with almost superhuman haste."

"Drawing a knife, the native dived just as the black fin swept in for the kill. For a minute there was nothing but bubbles on the surface, and Miss Costello's fright-balanced face, awaiting the verdict from the depths. Then a white-bellied monster floated up, with hideous mouth agape, dead. And the boatman, with his knife and a smile of relief, repeated himself calmly in his canoe, dragged Miss Costello in after him and took her ashore."

"She arrived here recently, showing six teeth taken from the shark's mouth as souvenirs of her big adventure."

price at which refined sugar has sold has been too small to justify a dividend on the entire capital stock."

"The company will resume the payment of dividends on its common stock as soon as the normal difference between the price of raw and refined sugars is restored, and the directors believe that such a resumption will occur very soon."

They knew precisely when this resumption would occur, since that event depended solely upon the determination of the same refining combine. Yet in the time of falsehood issued yesterday this statement was made:

"During the first six months of 1914 consumers in the United States bought their sugar lower than ever before, the average price of refined sugar being 3.91 cents per pound."

This was a matter of general comment, and was equally gratifying to manufacturers and consumers."

One of the most infamous features of the unwarranted publicity forced on the price of sugar last summer was the loss they occasioned the housewives and farmers of this country. They began forcing up sugar early in August, when the good women of America were on the eve of canning and preserving fruits and vegetables for the coming year. As a result of this, thousands of tons of fruit were allowed to spoil, millions of dollars were wasted, and the very people whom they had deceived into believing that they would furnish cheaper sugar were made the victims of their greed."

But such practices on the part of the sugar refining trust, which is now seeking to cast a doubt upon my motives are not to be wondered at, when the United States attorney general has recently charged them with having practiced "A long-continued system of defrauding the government of an unvalued depravity."

As to Governor Carter

In this attack upon me the refining trust says:

Curiously enough, the next day Governor Carter of Hawaii, Congressman Broussard's ally in the effort to retain the high duties on sugar, more correctly stated the situation."

I am proud to number such a splendid specimen of sturdy American manhood as Governor George R. Carter of Hawaii among my personal friends, but I never discussed the sugar situation with Governor Carter, save once in my life, and that only subsequent to the issuance of the Governor's and my statement quoted by Lowry.

The people of Hawaii have not been co-operating with the cane sugar growers of Louisiana, Texas and Porto Rico in the death struggle they are now engaged in with the sugar refining trust, and while I believe that all the sugar-producing interests under the American flag will eventually realize the wisdom of standing together and presenting a united front to their common enemy, yet there is no more truth in (slandering Governor Carter as my ally in the sense intended by the refiners' circular than there is in many of the other false statements with which they have persistently sought to deceive congress and the consuming public.

TWO JUDGES TAKE DIFFERENT STANDS CONCERNING COURT

Ashford Argues Against Domestic Relations Tribunal; Whitney Favors the Bill

PROTECTIVE COMMITTEE
ADOPTS RESOLUTIONS

Former Governor Carter, A. L. C.
Atkinson and Miss Berger
Urge Passage

Two Honolulu judges disagreed with each other over the proposed court of domestic relations, in statements read at a meeting of the Citizens' Protective Committee at the Library of Hawaii last night.

Judge Clarence W. Ashford, first circuit judge, in a letter to President Chillingworth of the senate and Speaker Holstein of the house, argued against the court. Judge William L. Whitney, second judge, who is judge of the juvenile court, argued for the bill in a written statement.

Chicago Is Cited

Former Governor George R. Carter, A. L. C. Atkinson and Miss Berger spoke for the bill. Miss Berger said she knew of the work of the court of domestic relations of Chicago and the good it was doing.

The protective committee adopted this resolution:

Whereas, The Citizens' Protective Committee came into existence because of general and revolting crimes against women during the latter part of 1912, and

Whereas, This committee has been kept alive because of the desire of its members to not only prevent crimes of violence towards women, but to protect them from wrongs; and

Whereas, Our attention has been called to the project of creating a court of domestic relations in this circuit, as provided for in house bill No. 229; and

Whereas, Because of the smallness of the community, its isolation, our intimate acquaintance and our knowledge of each other, we are convinced that, notwithstanding our beautiful surroundings, the sum of our individual happiness can be increased by higher standards of human relations; and

Whereas, We believe that the establishment of such a court will be a monument to whatever legislature and administration may bring it into being:

Resolved, That the Citizens' Protective Committee endorses the proposed bill and recommends its passage by the legislature now in session.

Lack of Necessity

Judge Ashford said he believed there was an absolute lack of necessity for such a bill. Reconciliation of domestic differences, a function of the court, had been done legitimately and regularly by the circuit judge in charge of divorces and separations. Cases now reaching the courts usually have had the efforts of attorneys applied to a reconciliation, he said, which have failed; and "It should always be considered the function and duty of the judge presiding at a divorce trial to exert all reasonable influence to effect a reconciliation between the two parties before the matter proceeds to a decree."

"Picture marriages," the judge believed, are responsible for many unhappy marriages. If complaining wives would invoke more frequently the statutes providing monetary and imprisonment penalties for neglect and non-support, there would be less apparent necessity for invoking the aid of the divorce court, he stated.

The legislature also has made divorce too easy and too cheap, he continued. His final statement was that the proposed salary of $350 a month for the judge of the court of domestic relations was excessive, especially when compared with the salaries now received by circuit judges, whose qualifications are higher and who do more work.

Judge Whitney opened his statement with a discussion of the plan of the court, "where matters relating to domestic relations shall have the full time of the judge."

He averred that the progress of the juvenile court from 1908, when an act merely provided that judges might appoint probation officers for children's cases instead of sending the offenders to the Industrial School; up to the establishment of the present juvenile court in 1909. For the last five years, he said this court has heard also "divorce, guardianship, adoption and probate cases, and to it has been assigned by law the hearing of cases of cruelty to children, desertion, bastardy and non-support cases."

This arrangement has worked well, he went on, but the fact that the juvenile judge also has had to handle a regular share of the circuit court work has kept the children from receiving the time they should.

The work has increased greatly each year, he said.

There are more than ten times the number of divorces here in proportion to population, than in any other country, Judge Whitney asserted. The bill provides that the judge shall examine the case before it is heard, thus saving the time of the parties and the court.

French. It was the first outburst which Drelichshak, Nielsen, Crilly and Loughman have had since they arrived on the island. They would not see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

DRELLISHAK WEDS BEFORE TRIP HERE

Diver and Miss Alice Humphrey of New York Married
April 3

Stephen J. Drelichshak, one of the four divers working on the submarine F-4, was married just before his departure from New York for Honolulu, according to the New York Times. Drelichshak is a gunner's mate in the navy. Before coming here he was the champion diver of the world with a depth of 273 feet, and now he and his three comrades hold the record of 306 feet lately.

The wedding took place only two hours before Drelichshak and his party left New York on their trip across the continent to San Francisco, where they boarded the cruiser Maryland to come to Honolulu. The bride formerly was Miss Alice E. Humphrey of 94 Hyattson street, New York.

Engaged Several Months

They had been engaged several months, the Times said, and the wedding had been fixed for Tuesday, April 6. Invitations had been issued, and the wedding ceremony was to be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother. The plans were upset when Drelichshak received orders April 3 to leave for Honolulu.

He saw no reason why there should not be a wedding, navy department orders or no navy department orders, and he and Miss Humphrey went down to the marriage license bureau. Then they called on the Rev. Father Burke of the Sacred Heart Catholic church on Vermont avenue, where they were married. With them were William Scully and Miss Irene Read, friends of the groom and bride.

Home In Ohio

After the wedding, there was a reception at the home of Miss Humphrey's mother, Mrs. J. B. Spence, and afterwards Drelichshak boarded a train.

Drelichshak, the Times said, had been stationed at the Brooklyn Navy yard about eighteen months. His home is in Independence, Ohio.

HOW LEIPZIG SUNK TOLD BY A WOMAN

Captain Luce of Glasgow Relates How Brave Crew of German Went Down

When the Leipzig went down off the Falkland Islands, in the engagement of December 8, it was noted that she refused to haul down her flag, and, in consequence, was swept beneath the waves in a torrent of shot and shell from the Glasgow, nearby. The New York Tribune now prints a chapter that comes as an ironic sequel to the original story. It is told by a Mrs. Pope of Montevideo, Uruguay, who heard it from Captain Luce of the Glasgow at a dinner given to the officers of his ship in that city. Mrs. Pope says:

"The Leipzig fired her last shot and was ablaze inside. Her captain then ordered all hands on deck with their lifebelts on. They gathered in the waist of the ship, expecting an explosion any moment. The helmsman of the ship was cut by a shot and the deck below was burning, also a store room directly under and around the mast. They could not haul down their ensign, and one man who volunteered to climb the mast was hurled to death."

The signal-room was afire also, and the three green lights were discovered at the last moment in a box on deck. The captain, who had been on the deck, and the Glasgow's last two rounds just moved them down by fifty and sixty and strewn the life rafts and wide. The captain sat in the midst of them, as calm as though they were at anchor at home. He sat and talked and smiled and helped them to keep steady, and just at the end his cabin boy found a life box of cigarettes. He passed them himself to crew and officers. He was sitting on the up side of the ship as she heeled over, and jumped with them, but went down and could not be found."

It was a most horrible situation, and the German officers said that just standing there on a moving and disabled ship, unable to make any signals at all to the enemy, waiting to be blown up any moment, and the meantime being killed by hundreds of every shot from the Glasgow, was enough to break the nerve of any man."

Captain Luce said he never felt so horribly about anything in his life, but he could not have done otherwise, and run the risk of losing his ship by being torpedoed, and it might very well have been a case of the Leipzig to get the Glasgow within torpedo range."

"Now here you have some war news which is as yet entirely unknown, and likely to be for some time to come. Captain Luce himself looked ten years older. I am writing to Mrs. Luce, who was out here for three months a year ago. These poor navy women, what a terrible time for them!"

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and jokingly told him that he would never see clear water than in which the lost submarine lies. They are happy fellows on land and among their fellows—but when it comes to diving there is not a more serious quartet of men in the world.

son and Drelichshak, who had gone to world record depths, only laughed when their feats were mentioned and proclaimed that they never felt better in their lives. They dived Loughman on the back and joking